Uppercase Letterform Trace-and-Copy Rows: A Structured Handwriting Worksheet Plan

Worked example / complete source key

A learner traces a dotted capital L and then copies it in the blank space. The start dot is at the top, and the arrow points down, then right. The copy starts at the top but the horizontal stroke is shorter than the model. Using the rubric, identify one check that passes and one fix.

Answer: Pass: the start dot was used and the downward stroke followed the arrow. Fix: compare the horizontal stroke length to the solid model and lengthen the copy's horizontal stroke to match the row width.
