Drawing an Anime Girl: Face, Hair, and Pose Construction

Original worked example / unchanged complete key

Prompt: Draw an anime girl standing with one hand on her hip. Use a head-height unit of 1 unit (hypothetical example). The head is 1 unit tall; total figure is about 6 units. Place the eye line at the middle of the head, nose line one-third down from the eye line, and mouth halfway between nose and chin. Build hair as a cap plus two side sections and a length mass. Construct the pose with a spine curve, shoulder line tilted opposite the hip line, and joint dots at elbows and knees.

Answer: A completed construction shows a head circle with tapered chin, eye line at mid-head, nose and mouth marks on their guides, hair cap slightly above the skull with side and length masses, a neck attached behind the jaw, a spine curve with ribcage oval and pelvis trapezoid, shoulder and hip lines counter-tilted, and limb lines with joint dots. The hand-on-hip arm bends at the elbow with the hand near the hip line. Final lines are clean and guides are erased. Proportions are consistent with the 6-unit convention.
