Simple Pitbull Face Drawing: Muzzle, Ears, and Eye Placement

Worked example / complete source key

A learner draws a circle with midline, places eye centers two x-height units apart, and sketches a muzzle base three units wide. The ear bases are marked at ten-thirty and one-thirty, above the eye line and inside the outer eye corners. Describe the next three refinement actions and one check.

Answer: First, round the muzzle front corners and draw a wide nose at the center. Second, draw almond eyes with centered pupils and confirm the gap is at least one eye-width. Third, choose button ears and draw them symmetrically with bases above the eye line and no wider than the outer eye corners. Check: muzzle width should measure about three x-height units; if it is narrower, widen the base before darkening lines.
