Draw an Annoyed Expression: Brow and Mouth Variation Practice

Ordinary topic reference / separately checked pixels

Draw an Annoyed Expression: Brow and Mouth Variation Practice

Original worked example / unchanged complete key

Prompt: Draw one annoyed face using brow variant B (inner ends 4 mm lower, gap 2 mm, crease) and mouth variant 2 (slight downward curve, 2 cm wide, corners 2 mm lower than center). Label the cues and state one check you would use.

Answer: On the 8 cm by 6 cm oval, place eyes on the eye line. Draw brows with inner ends 4 mm lower than outer ends and a 2 mm gap; add a 3 mm crease between them. Draw the mouth as a 2 cm line with corners 2 mm lower than the center. Label 'inner-down brows' and 'slight down mouth'. Check: cover the mouth; the brows alone should read as annoyed because the inner ends are lower and close. Cover the brows; the mouth alone should read as mildly annoyed because the corners are lower than the center. If either fails, adjust only that feature by 1 mm and compare.