Draw a Floating Sea Otter: Pose, Paws, and Fur Texture

Ordinary topic reference / separately checked pixels

Draw a Floating Sea Otter: Pose, Paws, and Fur Texture

Original worked example / unchanged complete key

Prompt: Draw a sea otter floating on its back with one forepaw raised near its face and the other resting on its belly. Use the construction method and add directional fur strokes.

Answer: A completed drawing shows a horizontal body oval about 2 units long and 1 unit tall. The head oval sits at the left, diameter 0.5 units, centered slightly above the midline. A short neck connects them. The upper forepaw is a small rounded shape near the face, crossing the chest line, with three finger bumps. The lower forepaw rests on the belly. Hind flippers angle down 25 degrees from the right end. Fur strokes flow head to tail on the back, radiate from the nose on the head, and point toward fingers on the paws. The eye is a small oval one-third head width from the nose. Head length is about 0.25 of body length, within the adult range.