Upside-Down Kiss Drawing: Orientation Practice

Worked example / complete source key
